

Complex contract disputes and property claims can impair an organization's balance sheet, impose unacceptable variability around financial results and jeopardize its future, whether it's in the business of construction, real estate, power, health care, or another industry.

Recovery and resiliency are closely correlated with risk management before an event and claim resolution after a financial loss. Through a multidisciplinary team with specialized industry and financial expertise, Imperium Consulting Group helps clients measure and mitigate the economic impact of property loss and contract disputes, so organizations can keep growing.
